

Rivertrain comes to Norwich!

Engineers have developed a revolutionary 'floating sleeper' method of laying new railway tracks on water. This opens the possibility for the rapid expansion of the railway network as the new tracks can be laid very quickly and at minimal cost. Pictured above is the Rivertrain on the experimental track laid in just one day! The method is ideal for steam trains as there is a constant supply of water.